(03 Marks) Questions

Q. Difference between learning and acquisition: Language Acquisition:

Language acquisition is the process by which humans acquire the capacity to perceive and comprehend language, as well as to produce and use words to communicate.

Language Learning means a person is trying to learn the language consciously through practice, training, or experience.

Q. Language enterprise

Focused on the linguistic dimension, the three dimensions of the language policy (LP) enterprise are:

1. Corpus planning: Changing the form of the language itself through standardization (standardizing language forms), graphization (developing a writing system), modernization (coining new words and terms)
2. Status planning: Modifying the status and prestige of the language
3. Acquisition planning: Developing new users of the language. Acquisition planning is especially relevant to those of us interested in bilingual education because school is the most important agent in acquisition planning

Q. Note on the dimensions of language policy enterprise:

Emergence of the fluid:

The need for language based identity after decolonization.

Examples: France, Russia and Pakistan itself.

Belief that language problems could be resolved by modernizing it.

Three Dimensions of LP enterprise: Corpus planning, Status planning, Acquisition planning

Q. Dimensions of language policy enterprises:

The three dimensions of the language policy (LP) enterprise are:

1. Corpus planning: Changing the form of the language itself through standardization (standardizing language forms), graphization (developing a writing system), modernization (coining new words and terms)

3. Acquisition planning: Developing new users of the language. Acquisition planning is especially relevant to those of us interested in bilingual education because school is the most important agent in acquisition planning

Q. What is language policy and writes its important functions:

Language policy is directly related to the language used by the country. It relates to attitude, language identities that are prevalent there. It dictates what we call a linguistic market base. So, on the basis of language market certain languages are valued and certain maynot. Policy is the product of language planning.

Important function of language policy are

1. Language management – also known as language planning, language intervention, language engineering, or language treatment, and referring to direct efforts to manipulate the language situation
2. Language practices – the habitual pattern of selecting among varieties that make up its linguistic repertoire; related to what Hymes (1967) calls ethnography of speaking
3. Language beliefs or ideology – the beliefs about language and language use

Q. Name two kind of language system
